

Development status of LiB for long range EV

이재현[†]

LG화학

(jaylee@lgchem.com[†])

The unending demand for long range driving EV stimulates the development of high energy density LiB with significant reduction in cost, which will be possible through another innovation in materials technologies. Here, I would like to discuss about recent material trends for BEV and structure comparison between cylindrical and pouch based cell.